REV. PUTMAN LOCAL LEADER
A mass meeting in the interest of world peace will be conducted next Thursday, October 22, in Christ Lutheran church at 8 o'clock in the evening. The meeting is being arranged by a planning committee headed by the Rev. Dwight F. Putman.

An active worker in the interest of world peace, Doctor Sayre addressed a peace meeting that was held in St. James' Lutheran church last spring. Next week's gathering is in the nature of a follow-up of the session held earlier this year and is being arranged in connection with the emergency peace campaign that is rapidly approaching the half-way mark in its two-year effort to "keep the United States from going into war and to keep war out of the world." At least 500 cities in all parts of the nation will hold similar mass meetings during this month and November.

The local planning committee, comprising the Rev. Mr. Putman, Dr. C. F. Sanders, H. W. Weidner, J. D. Miller and Donald R. Heiges, is seeking the cooperation of county pastors, school principals and presidents of civic organizations.
On the day of his visit here for the mass meeting, Doctor Sayre will deliver the annual Stuckenber lecture at Brua chapel on the Gettysburg college campus at 11 o'clock in the morning. His subject there will be "Education and Peace."

TWO FINED FOR HAULING STEERS
Virginia Truckers Arrested for Bringing Untested Cattle Across State Line.
At 4 o'clock this morning two Winchester, Virginia, men were arrested by agents of the state department of agriculture for bringing untested cattle across the Pennsylvania-Maryland state line. They were arrested promptly before Justice of the Peace John H. Baschore who levied fines of $10 and costs on each after they had signed pleas of guilty.

Ray O. Whipple, the agent who laid the information, charged that J. W. Mills and V. B. Ynger, "did unlawfully bring steers across the state line that were not tested and health certificates did not accompany same." State laws require that cattle that have not been tested for tuberculosis cannot be brought into this state.
The men said they were trucking the cattle to Lancaster when they were nabbed on the Emmitsburg road by the patrolling state officers. The case is the first of its kind ever brought here.
The next meeting of the association will be held Friday evening, November 20 at Littlestown, when Camp No. 386 will be host.

That Is Opinion of Dr. Dorizas As Expressed in Lecture To College Students.
"The Importance of the Balkans" was the subject of the illustrated lecture delivered by Dr. Michael Dorizas, professor in the department of geography of the Wharton school, University of Pennsylvania, when he addressed the Gettysburg college student body this morning in the Majestic theatre.

In introducing his subject, Doctor Dorizas described the size, location and climate of the Balkan countries, and emphasized their importance to Europe and Asia by referring to them as "the cockpit of Europe." He further emphasized the important part geography plays in the history of the world by showing through the use of slides the geographical reasons why European nations engaged in the World war.
Doctor Dorizas continually impressed his audience with the fact that "it is all right to say that people fight for democracy, but for heaven's sake don't forget the pocketbook." Traveling with his audience through the various Balkan countries—Albania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Rumania, Hungary, Turkey and Greece—Doctor Dorizas pointed out the various modes of dress, habits, customs and manners of living of each country.
At the conclusion of his lecture, Doctor Dorizas showed sound pictures of his native Greece. The slides and films used were a part of

Following the election of officers plans laid held for a membership drive to be launched in all the camps of the county this fall. After the meeting refreshments were served.
Denying that he knew or had ever seen his alleged victim before the hearing, James "Duster" Pittenturf, West High street, was returned to the county jail for November court, Thursday evening, following a hearing before Justice of the Peace John H. Baschore. Pittenturf is charged with robbing Melvin Speelman, of Cumberland township, of $50 as the latter walked along the Mummaburg road toward his home late last Saturday night.

Pittenturf was represented at the hearing by Edgar K. Markley, Esq., who put forth his client as a volunteer witness in his own behalf. Although he was not required to give testimony at the preliminary hearing before the justice, Pittenturf spoke willingly and declared he had been in Emmitsburg at the time Speelman says he was robbed.
Speelman was another witness. He again identified Pittenturf as the man who leaped from a car at a lonely point on the Mummaburg road Saturday night and told him (Speelman) that he was under arrest and then removed slightly more than $50 from his pockets.

Several other witnesses were called, among them Trooper John L. Hochreiter, of the local substation of the state police, who laid the charge of robbery against Pittenturf, Tuesday.
In default of bail, Pittenturf was re-committed to jail.

URGE BIGGER YULE DISPLAY
Members of Decorating Committee to Meet Tonight to Determine Extensions.
Gettysburg's Christmas street decorating committee will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the telephone business office, C. A. Bixler, chairman, announced today.

The purpose of the meeting is to determine what extensions to the Christmas street decorations are to be made this year, and to ascertain the opinion of businessmen and other residents relative to the proposed extensions and the estimated cost.
So much favorable comment was heard last year after the decorations were erected that many residents urged an extension this year to include the second and possibly the third blocks from the square.

The decorations purchased last year are under lock and key and are in excellent condition for service this year and many years to come. The extensions this year will not cost nearly as much as those purchased last Christmas season and the additions will add considerably to the yuletide spirit of Gettysburg.

Chairman Bixler made an urgent appeal to all members of the committee to attend tonight's meeting which, he said, will be brief.

Glowing Charcoal Causes $5,000 Fire at Catholic Church in Bonneauville

A Coincidence
Fire and Death of Bonneauville Rector Occur Year Apart.
WHEN the altar boys' sacristsy of St. Joseph's Catholic church, Bonneauville, was destroyed by a $5,000 blaze today, the second event of importance in the church's history took place on October 16.

Just a year ago—October 16, 1935—the Rev. Father Timothy J. O'Hanrahan, then rector at Bonneauville, was instantly killed in an automobile accident near Lancaster.

JOHNSON FREE ON $2,500 BAIL
One of 2 Washington (D.C.) Men, Held for Swindling Local Woman, Released.
A prisoner in the county jail here since his arrest by state police the evening of September 21, Henry A. Johnson, 44, Washington, D. C., alias John A. Henry, was released under $2,500 cash bail posted this afternoon before Clerk of the Courts Roy D. Renner. The bail was reduced from $10,000 by a special order of District Attorney John P. Butt.

Johnson is charged with attempting to obtain money under false pretenses from Miss Carrie E. Tawney, East Middle street dressmaker. He was arrested with Franklin M. Plummer, 40, also of Washington, D. C., who is charged with obtaining money from Miss Tawney through the sale of bogus oil stock and other means.
After they had been trapped by the police and committed to jail the charges were laid before Justice of the Peace John H. Baschore and both men subsequently waived hearings.

The bail was posted for Johnson, by Clay Plummer, an older brother of Franklin Plummer, who remains in jail here in default of $10,000. Johnson must appear in court here in November under the terms of the bailpiece. He went to Washington this afternoon.

Damage estimated at nearly $5,000 resulted when fire destroyed the interior of the altar boys' sacristsy of St. Joseph's Catholic church at Bonneauville about 9 o'clock this morning. Heat and the dense clouds of heavy black smoke damaged other sections of the structure to the extent that the Rev. Fr. Leo J. Krichen, rector, said that he believes the entire interior of the church will have to be renovated.
The building and its contents were insured.
The fire started in a metal cabinet, located in the sacristsy, where tapers, candles, quantities of charcoal and censers are stored. It is believed that a bit of glowing charcoal, used in a service conducted in the church less than an hour before the blaze was discovered, caused the fire.
The boys' sacristsy was filled with flames when the fire was discovered by pupils in the parochial school building several hundred feet to the east of the church structure. The Bonneauville firemen were notified quickly and a call was placed for the Gettysburg fire company which responded at once with three pieces of apparatus.
Use Water From Reservoir
Local firemen received the call at 9 o'clock and led by Corporal J. G. Warren of the local substation of the highway patrol, made a record run to the scene of the blaze.
When firemen of the two companies reached the church they found flames and smoke pouring from the single window of the sacristsy and immediately laid 600 feet of hose to a reservoir in the southern section of the town, specially constructed by firemen of Bonneauville for use in such an emergency. The flames were quickly extinguished but not before the interior of the sacristsy, a small brick-walled room at the southeast corner of the church edifice, had been ruined and clouds of dense smoke from burning candles and charcoal had poured into the church auditorium through the sanctuary.
Father Krichen said that many boxes of charcoal and candles, censers, cassocks and surplices of the altar boys and all other supplies stored in the sacristsy had been destroyed and placed the value of those goods at about $500.
Smoke Fills Auditorium
The flames were prevented from spreading to the church auditorium through the sanctuary by the first fireman to enter the sacristsy. He found the door open leading to the sanctuary and closed it. The door was badly charred on both sides.
The auditorium was filled so thickly with smoke that a Gettysburg fireman donned a gas mask and made his way about the interior, opening windows, after it had been determined that the flames had not reached that part of the building. A member of the Bonneauville company tried to reach the windows without a mask and fell to the floor. He was found by Gene Sickles, masked Gettysburg fireman, gasping for breath. He was assisted from the building and in a few minutes had completely recovered.
The sanctuary and its contents, as well as the furniture and carpets in the auditorium were covered with a black sooty deposit that will make necessary a complete cleaning of the building and redecoration of the interior.
Windows are Cracked
Father Krichen's vestments were stored in the priest's sacristsy on the southwest corner of the building. That room was filled with smoke and the heat was so intense that windows were cracked and the paint on cupboards blistered, although the flames did not reach that section of the structure.
The priest said that he had conducted a mass at 7:30 o'clock this morning as a part of the regular October devotions. He had been assisted by about eight altar boys. Following the mass a benediction was held when charcoal in a censer was used.
Father Krichen said he was careful to notice that all the lighted candles had been extinguished. The charcoal, which is believed to have caused the fire, was placed in the metal cabinet, intended to be fireproof. The heat on the interior of

FASCIST DRIVE
ROUTS DEFENSE
NEAR MADRID

Rebels, Using Tanks, Advance to Within Shell Range of Capital.

Brunete, Spain, Oct. 16 (AP)—Fascist insurgents drove government defenders of Madrid back on this town Thursday night, which is only nineteen and a half miles due west of the capital.

Government forces defending the Pelayos Gorge were routed but fell back to a reasonably well fortified area between Chapinera and this windswept village below the Guadarrama mountain range.

Barbed wire defended trenches fell before the insurgent advance through Navas del Rey, about twenty-five miles west by north of Madrid.

Reinforcements were trucked up to the government lines here as ambulances loaded with the wounded threaded their way back toward Madrid.

Tanks Outflank Loyalists
The road running through Brunete joins a main highway from Naval Carnero into Madrid from the southwest.

"We must now guard against flank attacks," a government officer said.

Defense of Pelayos Gorge became hopeless when insurgent tanks forced the river Alberche and outflanked the government defenders.

Insurgent planes bombed government concentrations in the gorge and machine gunners peppered lead at the retreating socialists.

The government forces fell back stubbornly through San Juan pass until they had time to throw barbed wire across the path of the advancing insurgents.

"Zero hour" for the storming of the actual fortifications of Madrid was believed imminent.

In other quarters fascist troops were pressing on Oviedo, where a body of insurgents was holding out against a furious hand-to-hand battle with government militiamen entrenched before the city.

Col. Martin Alonso's fascist column fought its way to within less than four miles of Oviedo, important northwestern Spanish city.

The advancing insurgents established contact with Colonel Aranda's fascist troops inside Oviedo by sending couriers along the bullet-swept highway through Aranga and into the northern part of the city.

During the day of bitter fighting, Colonel Alonso's column moved forward from Monte Encampado, 15 miles last night—Oct. 15.

The miners composing the government force battled fiercely. At some points they had three rows of parallel trenches, protected by barbed wire.

The fascists had to fight their way over almost every inch of ground. They hurled hand grenades to clean out the trenches as much as possible and then rushed the remaining defenders with their bayonets.

Three columns of fascist warriors under Gen. Jose Varela, fought their way to a point within twenty-five miles southwest of Madrid. They hoisted the red and yellow insurgent flag at the new field headquarters near the village of Aldea del Fresno, only nine miles from the strategic center of Navalcarnero.

The cabinet became so intense that the latch melted and the doors warped allowing the flames to spread.

The mass and benediction had been completed shortly after 8 o'clock. The flames were discovered a little more than a half hour later.

The call to Bonneauville this morning was the first alarm the local company has received since the evening of August 24 when it was called to the Henry Gebhart farm, a quarter of a mile west of Bonneauville, when a straw stack burned. No thorough calls have been received since the borough garage was damaged by flames in July.

CAPITALS OF EUROPE LOOK
TO BELGIUM

Peace Structure Shaken by King Leopold's
Neutrality Hint.

(By the Associated Press)
Europe's peace structure shook today under repercussions of the Belgian King Leopold's speech indicating his country would return to her pre-war neutrality status.

The consensus of interpretations in European capitals was that Leopold's speech to his cabinet presaged Belgian withdrawal from the mutual assistance pact with France, and from the Locarno treaty for European security.

Fearing this was the correct interpretation, the French foreign office hastily drafted a note asking specific explanations from the Belgian government.

Will Stay in League
The Belgian ambassador to London was reported Thursday night to have assured Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden that King Leopold referred only to Locarno conferences, and that Belgium would adhere to the league obligations.

The French note asked answers to the four questions asked by diplomats throughout Europe:

1. Would Belgium withdraw from her mutual assistance pact with France?
2. Would Belgium withdraw from the Locarno treaty?
3. Would Belgium participate in future Locarno discussions?
4. Would Belgium abide by her league of nations obligations?

Fate Hangs on Answers
Upon clear answers to these questions, European observers felt, hung the fate of the complex European treaty set-up designed to guarantee the continent against another world war.

The Locarno pact, signed eleven years ago today has been held by European statesmen to be the keystone or collective security.

The signatories were Germany, Italy, France, Great Britain and Belgium.

The present Locarno treaty became a "dead letter" in March, 1936, when Hitler re-armed the demilitarized Rhineland. In a German note sent to Britain in reply to a British questionnaire yesterday, however, Hitler was said to have declared his government willing to sit in on further Locarno conferences.

FATALLY HURT
NEAR PALMYRA

Jesse C. Sadler, 41, Formerly
Of New Oxford, Drove Bakery
Truck in Crash.

Jesse C. Sadler, 41, of Palmyra, formerly of New Oxford, was fatally injured early Wednesday morning when the bakery truck which he was driving was struck by a Hershey milk trolley at the Deodate road, near Palmyra. He was removed to the Hershey hospital, where death occurred Wednesday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock.

Mr. Sadler had formerly been a shoe worker and had been employed in a New Oxford factory and later in a shoe factory at Palmyra. About two months ago he purchased the truck and bread route and began distributing bread for the Baum bakery, Palmyra. He had just started out for the day's delivery when the accident occurred. Death, according to Doctor Horn, Hummelstown, coroner of Dauphin county, who issued the death certificate, was due to a crushed left chest and a fractured skull.

Mr. Sadler was a son of Francis Sadler, and the late Martha E. Chronister Sadler, and was born November 16, 1894. Surviving are his father, who resides at 304 Carlisle street, Hanover; two brothers, Melvin Sadler, Dayton, Va., and James Sadler, 669 Broadway, Hanover; two sisters, Mrs. Elmer Smith, Irishtown, and Mrs. Sherman Johnson, Millville, Pa., and a half-sister, Miss Ruth Sadler, Millville. He was an active member of the Lutheran church, Palmyra, and was affiliated with the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, that place.

Funeral services Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock from the home of his brother, James Sadler, 669 Broadway, Hanover. Interment in the New Oxford cemetery. The body may be viewed at the home this evening from 6 to 9 o'clock.

A Christian Endeavor rally program sponsored by the Adams county Christian Endeavor organization will be presented at 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening in the Heidersburg United Brethren church. Included on the program will be string instrument music, vocal selections by Dale Roth. A guest speaker will make an address.

The Political Situation

Roosevelt Takes
Stand on Security
In Detroit Speech

Detroit, Oct. 16 (AP)—Asserting he was not afraid of the verdict, President Roosevelt Thursday night defined what he called the outstanding issue of the campaign: "Shall the social and economic security and betterment of the masses of the American people be maintained and strengthened or not?"

Speaking from the east lawn of the city hall to thousands of persons jammed around a flag-ornamented platform, the President expressed a belief that the people of America on November 3 would ask for continuance of the preference to one that "puts dollars above human rights."

In the heart of the country's vast automotive industrial district, he asserted 1936 promises to be the second largest year of automobile production in history, but added that the industry, and every other industry, still needs improvement in relationship with employees.

Workers Should Get More
"It is my belief," he said, "that the manufacturers of automobiles and the manufacturers of many other necessary commodities must, by planning, do far more than they have done to date to increase the yearly earnings of those who work for them."

Referring early in his address to the problem of relief, he argued that relief and work relief provided by federal funds "saved American humanity, and saved also the solvency of cities and states in every part of the nation."

The chief executive came to Detroit after an all-day stumping trip of southern Michigan cities, which traced in reverse much of Wednesday's political trail of Governor Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, his republican opponent.

The President said he could not accept the conclusion of "many republican leaders that major depressions are inevitable." And to a republican leadership which ran the government from 1921 to 1933 he attributed a "major catastrophe."

Steps Already Taken
On the question of automotive employment, the President said that certain steps already had been taken toward spreading work more evenly through the year and toward raising the yearly pay envelope in Detroit and other centers of the industry from $600 or $700 a year to more than $1,000.

But, he said, these steps were not enough and then asserted manufacturers must plan to boost yearly incomes of employees.

decided trend in their country for a "free" church entirely independent of the state.

Bishop August Marahrens, of Hanover, president of the Lutheran world convention, declared that economic and social conditions in Europe had not interfered with progress of the church.

War, he declared, was out of the question in Germany.

"As far as Germany is concerned, we shall have continued peace," he asserted.

Progress is Outlined

Speaking in German, Bishop Marahrens outlined at tonight's massmeeting progress of the world convention in drawing together various Lutheran bodies.

"As our Lutheran churches in Europe have come closer and closer to one another, we believe all Lutherans the world over will be drawn eventually into one great convention," he said.

Dr. Hans Lilje, of Berlin, executive secretary of the world convention, asserted that there would be no war in Europe during the life of the present generation, which saw the horror of the last world conflict.

Much of the "saber-rattling" which Americans hear, he said, is "manufactured propaganda."

Officers Are Re-elected

The convention delegates re-elected at their business session Thursday their officers, including Dr. F. H. Knobel, 66-year-old New Yorker, who has headed the United Lutheran Church since its establishment in 1918; E. Clarence Miller, of Philadelphia, for eighteen years its treasurer, and Dr. G. W. Grever, of New York, starting his third term as secretary.

The church president said he saw no necessity of declaring a moratorium on preaching, as advocated by a New York Episcopal rector.

"Do not the average small attendances in our churches declare that the great mass of our population has already declared such a moratorium?" he asked. "Perhaps what is needed is a moratorium on all sermons not drawn from God's revelation."

Bishop Hans Meister, of Bavaria, was recalled to Germany an hour before he was to speak at Thursday night's session by a cablegram saying his mother is seriously ill in Munich.

AMUSEMENTS

STRAND THEATER
A new cowboy melody "My Heart's on the Trail," is heard in RKO radio's western screen production, "The Last Outlaw," at the Strand Saturday.

The melody was written by Nathaniel Shilkret, RKO radio musical director and well-known American conductor and composer. The lyrics were written by Frank Luther.

The song is sung in the picture by Frank Scott, promising young radio baritone singer.

Harry Carey and Hoot Gibson, veteran western stars, play the principal roles, with the support headed by comely Margaret Callahan, Henry B. Walthall, Tom Tyler, Ray Mayer and others.

The film unfolds a story of an old-time desperado who is released from prison after serving twenty-five years for bank robbery to find himself in a strange and modernized world.

College Democratic Club Hears R. Myers

Robert E. Myers, secretary to Governor Earle and formerly district attorney of Cumberland county, addressed the Democratic club of Gettysburg college, Thursday evening in Weidensall hall.

J. Richard Myers, president of the club, called the meeting to order and introduced George Happy, democratic committeeman. After giving a short talk, Mr. Happy introduced Mr. Myers.

At the conclusion of Mr. Myers' address, John H. Knickerbocker, Gettysburg college librarian, and Prof. C. Paul Cessna, of the mathematics department, presented republican and democratic viewpoints, respectively, of the coming election. The club will meet again in Weidensall hall at 8 o'clock next Thursday evening.

Senator John S. Rice will be the speaker.

500 Attend G. O. P.
Rally at New Oxford

A crowd estimated at 500 by party leaders attended a republican rally Thursday evening in center square, New Oxford. John Colestock, New Oxford, presided. Speakers delivered their addresses from a balcony at the front of the Park hotel. Traffic was diverted to the southern half of the square during the meeting.

The speakers included Robert A. Littleton, Esq., Washington, D. C.; Robert E. Tipton, Gettysburg, nominee for the general assembly; John R. Jackson, Esq., Waynesboro, for the state senate, and Dr. Frank S. Magill, Chambersburg, for congress. Music was presented by the New Oxford school band and refreshments were served.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: Terence Mahony is accused of murdering a man and of being in with a gang of kidnapers, among other things. But although he has important evidence, Inspector Kennedy has decided to give Elsa Little, the cinema actress, a chance to worm damaging information out of Terence before arresting him. Elsa is the niece of the murdered man, and because she recognized Terence's voice at the scene of the murder is the most important witness against him.

Chapter 29

RUTH'S WARNING

When the inspector had gone, Mahony left his lodgings and went round to Lee-Ramsden's house. He was shown into the drawing-room where Ruth and Lee-Ramsden were seated.

"Hullo," said Lee-Ramsden cheerfully. "You're looking rather pleased with yourself this morning. What's been happening?"

"As a matter of fact, I'm feeling rather pleased," answered Mahony. "I've just had a visit from Miss Little. She doesn't suspect me of murdering her uncle any more."

"That's good," said Lee-Ramsden. "I don't wonder that you're pleased." But Ruth frowned, and looked at Mahony in a puzzled manner.

"She doesn't suspect you any longer. Are you sure? What makes you think that?" she asked.

"She said so," replied Mahony. "She told me she was all wrought up and nerved yesterday, and hardly knew what she was saying."

"She told you that she didn't suspect you any more?" asked Ruth incredulously.

"She told me so herself," answered Mahony impatiently. "And she invited me to dine with her this evening. That doesn't look as if she still suspected me, does it?"

"I don't know," said Ruth slowly. "There was something very wrong here, she felt. Was Elsa setting a trap for him?"

"Don't you go to dinner with her," she said impulsively. "I'm sure she still suspects you. She's got some reason for inviting you to dinner."

Mahony felt very awkward; he thought Ruth was being silly. He did not quite know how to tell her politely that he had no intention of refusing Elsa's invitation.

Ruth saw what was passing in his mind. She realized that nothing would induce him to refuse Elsa's invitation.

"All right; do what you like. I'm going for a walk," she said in a somewhat muffled voice, and turned hastily and left the room, slamming the door after her.

Mahony looked astonished. Old Lee-Ramsden made a slight gesture as if to indicate that there was nothing to be astonished about.

"Women, my dear Mahony, are queer creatures; they have these moods, you know," he remarked airily. "What has been happening to you during the last twelve hours?"

"Quite a lot," answered Mahony, and he began to tell Lee-Ramsden about his adventures in Limehouse.

Ruth did not go for a walk. She went into the hall, put on a rain-coat and hat, opened the front door, and then changed her mind. She wanted to be alone, to think. She closed the front door again, went up to her guardian's study, and sat down in a large arm-chair.

She felt very miserable and helpless, and as she sat huddled in the big arm-chair, the tears ran slowly down her cheeks. What could she do: how could she save Mahony?

After a time she heard the front door open, and her guardian's voice in the hall below bidding Mahony good-bye. The front door closed; she heard her guardian's footsteps ascending the stairs to the study. He opened the door and entered.

Ruth shrank back in the big chair and remained quite still. She hoped Lee-Ramsden would not see her; she did not want him to know that she had been crying.

He crossed the room, humming a little tune, went to his desk, raised the telephone receiver, and gave a number. "In a second or two she heard him speaking."

"Is that you, Lawson? I've just been having a talk with our young friend Mahony. I can tell you what has happened to your missing man, Lake; he's imprisoned at number seven, Royal Road, Pennyfields. Mahony has engaged the services of some of our own toughs led by a man named Bassett, and they're after your blood. He gets into touch with Bassett by ringing Limehouse o-three-two-five, which is a pawnshop next door to Bassett's house, where Lake is imprisoned. Does this interest you at all?"

Ruth could just catch Lawson's answer, sounding very thin and faint.

"It interests me a lot. Thank you. I'll take steps to deal with those people, and Mahony, straight away."

Ruth sat quite still, absolutely horror-stricken. She found it almost impossible to believe that her guardian, who had pretended to be so firmly on Mahony's side, was betraying him to his enemies.

Lee-Ramsden replaced the receiver and resumed his humming. Then, for half a second, his humming checked. Sticking out from the side of a big chair which had its back towards him, he had seen a small piece of blue material—the material of which Ruth's frock was made. Ruth was in that chair. Obviously she had heard every word he had said.

He gave no indication of having seen her. Much better let her think, for the moment, that she had not been spotted. Still humming, he turned away from the desk and walked out of the room.

As he left the study his mind was working very quickly. He knew that Ruth's first action would be to warn Mahony of what she had overheard. And he made up his mind that his first action must be to prevent her from doing so.

At the bottom of the stairs that led down from the study he stopped and spoke a few words to Mullins, his butler. Then he went into the drawing-room and waited for a moment. After that he emerged into the hall again and called: "Ruth, my dear, are you anywhere about?"

Ruth, still in the study, heard him call. As Lee-Ramsden had guessed, her one idea was to warn Mahony of his danger. Very cautiously she emerged from the study, walked quietly a few paces along the corridor, opened and closed her bedroom door, and called back as naturally as she could: "Did you call, Uncle Gerald?"

Lee-Ramsden, down below in the hall, smiled. He saw through that trick of opening and shutting the bedroom door.

"Yes, I'd like to have a little chat with you. I won't keep you long," answered Lee-Ramsden.

Ruth descended the stairs and entered the drawing-room. She was possessed of a wild impatience to get out of the house and telephone to Mahony.

"What is it?" she said. "I was just going out."

"I won't keep you for more than ten minutes, my dear," said Lee-Ramsden. "I want to ask your advice about re-decorating this room."

For ten minutes he talked to her on the subject of decoration, asking questions which she managed to answer somehow. When the conversation was over, she slipped on a hat and coat and left the house.

Lee-Ramsden heard the front door close behind her, and went into the hall.

"Well, Mullins?" he asked. "I rang up Mr. Mahony's house," answered Mullins. "I told him you wanted to speak to him at once, most urgently, and he was to leave the house at once and meet you in the Lyons tea-shop in Park street. He said he'd go right away."

"Excellent," said Lee-Ramsden. "When Ruth rings she'll find he's gone. Just to make quite sure she doesn't catch him, ring up again and talk to the landlady for a few minutes—it doesn't matter much what you say so long as you keep the number engaged for a few minutes."

He himself put on a hat and coat, and took a taxi to the Lyons tea-shop in Park street. Mahony was already there, seated at a table. Lee-Ramsden's face wore an expression of anxious concern as he made his way towards him.

"I'm afraid I've got bad news for you—very bad news," he said. "When my butler rang you up, Inspector Kennedy had just left my house and was on his way to arrest you."

"Oh!" said Mahony. "Why has he suddenly made up his mind to arrest me?"

Lee-Ramsden hesitated, as if he hardly liked to go on. "I fear that was Ruth's doings," he went on. "The poor child is terribly sorry now for what she's done; she was in tears when I left her."

"What has she done?" asked Mahony.

"She's told Kennedy that you didn't see her till some time after the murder, and she also told him that you employed a gang of criminals in the East End who had imprisoned a man named Lake and were hiding a wanted man named Flynn. She gave him their address."

Waynesboro Backfield Stars

Two of Waynesboro high school's most promising backs are Beckner, above, and Henicle, right. Beckner does the passing for the Golden Tornado while Henicle's huge stature is used in cracking the line. Both boys are scheduled to start against Gettysburg high here Saturday.

Husky Waynesboro Eleven to Battle Maroons Saturday

A final light tuning up practice was given the Gettysburg high school football this afternoon in preparation for its game here Saturday afternoon with Waynesboro high. The crack Waynesboro band is expected to accompany the team with a host of fans.

Victorious in previous games over the National Training school, of Washington, D. C., and Shippensburg high, Waynesboro rules a decided favorite to down the Maroons. Coach "Rip" Engle has noddled together an experienced outfit that boasts plenty of weight and a fair amount of speed.

Stopping such men as Henicle, 200-pound fullback, and Shockey, 195-pound halfback, will be no little task, but the Maroons proved conclusively last week that being outweighed means little to them and are far from being without hopes of victory Saturday.

Lengthy drills smoothing out errors that cropped up against Mechanicsburg have been held daily. The Maroons are expected to take to the air early in the game and forward passing has received special attention this week. Several new plays have been added to the Maroons' repertoire of offensive tactics and it is upon these the Maroons will rely against their heavy opponents.

BULLETS PLAY AT ALLENTOWN

Gettysburg and Muhlenberg Open Conference Season On Saturday.

Seeking their first conference win of the season, Gettysburg's Orange and Blue grid aggregation left this afternoon at 2:15 o'clock for Allentown, where they meet "Doggie" Julian's Muhlenberg college eleven Saturday afternoon as the feature attraction on the Muhls' annual Homecoming Day program.

Coach Bream's lads have been showing good form in practice sessions throughout the week, displaying exceptional headwork, aggressiveness, and a greater scoring punch. According to Coach Bream the Bullet starting line-up for Saturday will include: Fish and Serfass, ends; Hughes and Walker, tackles; Yunaska and Wagner, guards; O'Neill, center; Cook, Sha-die, Superka and Bucklen, backs; while Fulmer, Yevak, Hebert, Schard and Wolfgang are certain to see action in the Muhl-Bullet fracas.

Both Gettysburg and Muhlenberg hold decisions over Lafayette, Muhlenberg having won in the opening game of the season, 19-6. A comparison of scores coupled with Muhlenberg's open date last Saturday to rest for the Bullets gives them a slight edge. Last year Gettysburg trampled the Muhls here 27-0.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Married in Mt. Joy: Guy W.
Senz, of Harney, Maryland, and Loretta E. Paul, Greenmount, were married Wednesday evening in Mt.
Joy Lutheran parsonage by Rev. L.
K. Young.

A White House Reception: Mr.
and Mrs. George P. Black, Baltimore street, have just returned from Washington, where Mr. Black attended the convention of assistant postmasters of the United States. On Wednesday afternoon they were among the guests of President Harding in the Blue Room at the White House, where a reception was held.

Services Mark Anniversaries:
After tracing the doctrines of religion back to Moses and the prophets, the Rev. G. W. McSherry, speaking Thursday evening at the anniversary services now being held in the Bethlehem Lutheran church, Fehdersville, declared his opposition to the new movements in modern religion.

Mr. McSherry was pastor of the Bethlehem church 38 years ago. It was his first charge after graduating from the Lutheran Seminary here in 1883.

The program marks the 25th anniversary of the present church;
the 75th anniversary of the first church and the 80th anniversary of the congregation in 1840. Rev.
W. D. E. Scott is the present pastor of the church.

No Trace of Men Who Blew Safes: Although State police and local authorities are following every possible clue that might lead to the capture of the men who early Wednesday morning attempted to rob the Gettysburg Postoffice and the Arendtsville National Bank, there is little hope held out for their apprehension. The would-be robbers left nothing behind except tools and blankets they had stolen in this vicinity, which provide little to work on.

Unique Birthday Party Tendered:
The executive committee of the Woman's League of Gettysburg College were hostesses at the birthday party given in the lecture room of the College Lutheran church
Tuesday afternoon.

The main feature of the afternoon was the cutting of a large birthday cake, baked by Mrs. William Miller. The cak was found to contain $41.10, all of which was given to the Y. M. C. A. fund.

The hostesses were: Mrs. C. F.
Senders, Miss Mary McConaughy,
Miss Kate Gilbert, Mrs. William
Miller, Mrs. H. B. Nixon, Miss Lily
Dougherty, Mrs. Felton, Mrs. Lee

fore a record-breaking attendance

es of St. James' Lutheran Sunday representing the founding of the Sunday School movement in Eng-

Two Rob Country Bank; Get $8,000

Antwerp, N. Y., Oct. 16 (AP).—
Two unmasked robbers walked into the Antwerp national bank in this north country village of slightly more than 800 inhabitants Thursday, forced the only occupant, Miss Katherine Kimberly, assistant cashier, to stand by while they scooped up between $800 and $10,000 in cash, then escaped in a black sedan.

Miss Kimberly said only one of the men had a gun when they entered the bank. The other stole a 38 calibre automatic revolver along with the money, she said.

Henry Praszaw, a customer, entered the bank while the holdup was in progress and also was ordered to
"stay quiet."

TOWNSEND BULLETIN
With the necessity of breaking down this strange hold that the money lenders have on our country, we can look for a hard battle in the halls of Congress. It is an established fact that the major parties are dominated and controlled by these very interests that must be broken. No help can be expected from either party in this line of endeavor. It is necessary to elect a candidate that is not elected or controlled by either party. Such a candidate is then able to vote for your best interests and your interests only. Since you elect him and not a particular party, he is responsible only to you.

WINNING STREAK ENDS
Berkeley, Calif. (AP).—The Berkeley high school bees, undefeated in 12 years and 108 games of football, have seen their winning streak come to an end. At the opening of the 1936 season they lost to the Tech high school reserves at Oakland 7-to-0. The Bees claim their winning streak sets a world record.

ACTRESS NORMA SHEARER IS ILL WITH PNEUMONIA
Hollywood, Oct. 10 (AP).—Norma Shearer, screen star and widow of Producer Irving Thalberg, was ill at her home here Thursday night of bronchial pneumonia.

Dr. Verne R. Mason, her physician, said Miss Shearer had been ill two weeks and that her condition was "satisfactory." Evidently her ill health was kept secret.

Thalberg died of lobar pneumonia a month ago, September 14. Miss Shearer was expected to appear in superior court today where Thalberg's will was scheduled to be admitted to probate.

BRITISHER WALKS TO FORGET LOVE
London (AP).—Nat Mercer, rejected lover, put women behind him—by taking a 1,500-mile walk around the English coast.

"Walking's good exercise," Nat explained. "It takes your mind off things. There's the sun, the air, the open road—and consolation."

LUZON DIGGING OUT:

DEATH TOLL UP TO 546

Manila, Oct. 16 (AP)—Communication lines were restored in typhoon-harassed northern Luzon Island Thursday and over the wires came tales of destruction that shot casualty lists up to 546 deaths and 1,045 missing.

The reports came from provinces that had been isolated since the storm whirled over the area north of here last Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Asserted threats to loot rice warehouses caused army officials to send constabulary detachments to some areas.

Relief agencies worked as fast as possible to get food supplies to the refugees.

IN HINDE-MOSLEM RIOT
Bombay, Oct. 16 (AP).—British troops were held in readiness Thursday night after 13 persons were killed, 140 injured and 50 arrested in religious rioting. The clashes grew out of the con-

Cows That Pray and Shake Hands Give Owner Relief From Job

Kenton, Ohio (AP).—Eddie Mullins, who digs graves in Grove cemetery, admits his job's a bit depressing but it would be worse if it weren't for Jersey and Mable. Jersey and Mable are his pet cows.

Eddie, who loves animals and would like to have a farm of his own, walked into the dry brown pasture to the east of the cemetery. He had just finished planting some evergreens and had a few minutes to spend with his friends.

Both trotted toward him, each apparently eager to be first to receive a pat on the head. Jersey won the trot.

Jersey Prays

"Don't you think it would be a good time to pray for rain so the grass will be green again?" said Mullins to Jersey.

Jersey looked at him for a moment and then sank to her front knees, her head almost to the ground, but she still had her eyes focused on him.

"Look at you," reproved Mullins, "you'll never get rain by praying that way." Jersey then bowed her head until her chin touched the ground.

Mable Shows Her Love

"That's better," said Mullins. "Now show me that you're my pal." Jersey rose and proffered her right hoof.

which Eddie took, much the same as a pet dog shakes hands.

Next Eddie said: "How old are you, Jersey?" Very promptly Jersey stamped her right foot on the ground five times. "That's right, you tell the truth about your age and that's more than a lot of girls do nowadays."

Just then Mable came close to Eddie along his neck. "How much do you die and rubbed the side of her face love me, Mable?" questioned Eddie. And Mable went "Moo-o-o-o."

"Taught her that when she was a calf," observed Mullins as he "shook hands" with her and started back to the cemetery.

"Before I fed her I would pull her head up on my shoulder. Then I'd give a few 'moo-o-os' and pretty soon she caught the idea. Now she wants to do it all the time."

Both cows give goodly quantities of milk, he says.

Rooster Does Trick, Too
Going through the yard Eddie came upon "Paddy," a husky rooster. "How big are you, old boy?" Paddy immediately spread his wings and fluffed up his feathers in a determined effort to look as big as a turkey gobbler. "I taught him that last winter when he had his comb frozen during the extremely cold weather," observed Eddie. "Before feeding him I would stretch out his wings and talk to him about how big he was. He soon got the idea."

When Carl Reynolds, Washington Senator outfielder, was ejected from a recent game it was his first forced exit in ten years in the majors. Reynolds threw dirt at Umpire Bill Summers.

WHAT do we mean by "SAFE LOANS"

We have said over and over again that we are glad to make safe loans . . .

What do we mean by safe loans? We mean loans made to reliable persons or firms, with the ability and willingness to repay the money within a definite time, agreed upon between us.

A safe commercial loan, for example, is usually one where the money is used so that it will bring back money. A merchant or manufacturer borrows money to stock up goods with which to fill orders. When the sales are made the money comes back and the loan is paid.
